☐EURASIA*Russia-Kazakhstan: Summit Resolves Difficult Issues

Among the 23 bilateral agreements Presidents Yel'tsin and Nazarbayev signed Monday are one that commits Russia to consult with Kazakhstan before using the nuclear weapons currently in that country and another to dismantle the unexploded nuclear device at Semey, according to Russian press reports. The Russians appear to have gained their main objective in the negotiations in obtaining a 20-year lease of the Baykonur space launch facility. ☐

Various economic agreements are designed to sustain ongoing efforts to preserve economic integration, particularly in northern Kazakhstan, but difficult problems such as oil pipeline transportation and large overdue debt payments between enterprises remain. Moscow is likely to continue to press for dual citizenship for ethnic Russians in Kazakhstan but probably does not anticipate any concessions. ☐
